Purpose

To develop a statewide strategic plan for addressing excess cervical cancer mortality through education, prevention and control efforts, and policy change while continuing support discovery work in the field of cervical cancer.

Target Audience

The target audience of this conference is anyone who has an interest in preventing and controlling cervical cancer in South Carolina. This includes clinicians, public health professionals, policymakers, survivors, advocates and others.

Expected Outcomes & Future Endeavors

As a result of this conference, a plan will be produced to guide efforts on the state and local level to address cervical cancer. Future activities will include follow-up meetings and events to continue this work.

Strategic Planning Work Session

This session will provide an opportunity for participants to contribute to the development of a strategic plan that addresses cervical cancer. Participants will dialogue and share recommendations regarding priorities and action steps that should be taken in South Carolina.

There will be designated rooms and locations with clinical and community titles. Participants will be asked to join the table that best meets their interests and needs, and each table will be responsible for prioritizing two action steps that could be employed to address cervical cancer. In addition, each group must develop a list of resources that already exist that might address cervical cancer in this state.
